Recycling from Start to Finish

Environmental responsibility in fitness flooring is about understanding a product's complete life cycle – where it came from and where it will end up. That is why recycling is such a key concern. Dropzone Speckle is one of those unique floors that begins and ends its life with recycling. It incorporates from 70% to 90% total recycled content depending on color, most of which is post-consumer material such as old automotive tires. Droptile and Dropzone Comfort also contain high percentages of post-consumer recycled content. Most importantly, Tarkett's Dropzone flooring can be recycled at the end of its life, diverting waste from landfills and creating raw materials for the manufacture of other products.
